BUILDING BRIDGES
Creating Our Legacy
ALL STARS PROJECT of DALLAS
2026 FALL BENEFIT

ABOUT THE ALL STARS

The All Stars Project of Dallas is part of a leading national nonprofit that transforms the lives of young people from underserved communities in partnership with caring adults, giving everyone the opportunity to grow. Through the developmental power of performance, we create free afterschool, workforce, and bridge-building experiences that help young people develop who they are becoming — on stage, in school, at work, and across the city.

Our 2026 Fall Benefit theme, Building Bridges, Creating Our Legacy, celebrates the partnerships, performances, and pathways that allow Dallas youth to step into new opportunities with confidence. From career readiness and paid internships, to talent shows, community events, and one-to-one coaching, All Stars brings together young people, families, schools, companies, civic leaders, and supporters to build a stronger, more connected Dallas.

OUR PROGRAMS

Dallas Works

Recognizing the All Stars Project's long-standing success in youth and workforce development, Dallas Mayor Eric L. Johnson named ASP the official nonprofit partner to help reimagine and relaunch Dallas Works, the city's Summer Youth Employment Program. Now powered by ASP, Dallas Works prepares the next generation with career ready workshops, internship preparation, hands-on professional experiences, and paid summer internships that build practical skills and open doors to future opportunities.

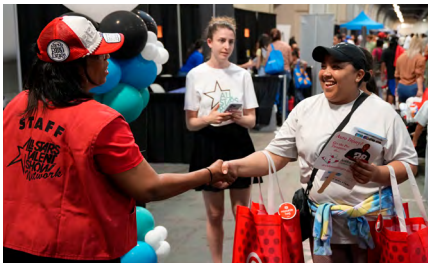

In 2026, All Stars Project of Dallas brought Summer Youth Employment Program opportunities to thousands of young people across the metroplex and trained hundreds more through Career Ready Workshops and the Internship Prep Bootcamp, placing 77 young people in internships at local businesses, nonprofits, and government agencies. With the support of employers, schools, civic partners, and community leaders, Dallas Works is building a citywide workforce development ecosystem that connects young people to the people, places, and performances of professional life.

Mayor's Back to School Fair and the All Stars Talent Show Network

In 2026, All Stars Project of Dallas in partnership with the Junior League of Dallas led the 30th Anniversary of the Mayor's Back to School Fair, reaching more than 10,000 young people and family members in one day of incredible impact. Attendees received free school supplies, backpacks, haircuts, health screenings, immunizations, access to wraparound services, and opportunities to connect with programs and partners from across Dallas.

As part of the Fair's Education and Development Zone, the All Stars Talent Show Network created a performance space where young people could express themselves, try new roles, and experience the confidence that comes from being seen and supported. This combined effort reflects the heart of our work: building bridges between youth, families, caring adults, and institutions so that young people can discover new possibilities for who they can become.

Development Coaching

Development Coaching is a fully virtual All Stars Project program that matches young people ages 18 to 24 with caring adults and industry leaders for one-to-one personal and professional coaching. Coaches help young people explore their next steps, expand their networks, strengthen their communication skills, and practice the confidence needed to move forward in work, school, and life.

HONOREE

Linda and Scott Davis Family

The Davis/Yost Group, Morgan Stanley Private Wealth Management

Scott Davis is a Managing Director with The Davis/Yost Group at Morgan Stanley in Dallas, where he advises accomplished entrepreneurs, executives, families, and foundations. His work reflects a deep understanding of how relationships, planning, and access can help individuals pursue long-term goals and build lasting impact, values that closely align with the mission of the All Stars Project (ASP) and are reflected in his leadership as a Trustee and now Board member for the Dallas region of the organization.

Since being introduced to ASP in 2014, Linda, Scott, and their family have become integral to the community of supporters that have expanded our programs and reach along with being generous financial supporters. Scott served as a founding Trustee of our signature Development School for Youth (DSY) program in Dallas before transitioning to the Board, and has joined us as a supporter, workshop and cosmopolitan outing host, connector, and advocate for young people across Dallas.

As active leaders of the All Stars Project community, Jordan Davis Brewer, daughter of Linda and Scott, and Adam Brewer, Jordan's husband and son-in-law to Linda and Scott, are joining the family's honoree campaign as Event Co-Chairs. Jordan and Adam champion youth development with their presence at each event and professional development workshop, and more broadly as door openers in their respective industries and philanthropic endeavors for our youth. For Adam, the mission is deeply personal as he relates to the struggles of youth from underserved communities and is inspired by All Stars youth who are actively choosing to grow and develop in our programs.

Together with Morgan Stanley, Linda, Scott, and the family has organized financial literacy and youth Career Ready workshops for DSY and Dallas Works, taking our young people to the musical Hamilton, and hosted suites to Stars and Mavs games through our Youth Building Bridges Across Dallas program dedicated to bringing youth experiences to connect to their home city. They have also sponsored Development Coaches to support young professionals gaining 1:1 coaching with our network of corporate partners, provided and sponsored internships, and more. Their commitment extends beyond personal involvement through their family's presence and participation in ASP programs and community events.

The Davis family's leadership is part of a broader, national partnership with Morgan Stanley and affiliate AMLI, a longstanding supporter of the All Stars Project since 2005. Through Morgan Stanley and the leadership of Scott and his colleagues at The Davis/Yost Group, Dallas youth have been welcomed into new professional spaces and formed meaningful connections with dedicated volunteers. This partnership reflects the best of ASP's involvement philanthropy approach: generous personal commitment, family participation, corporate engagement, and a shared belief that Dallas youth deserve access to new and life changing possibilities.

John Gain

WTW

John Gain is Dallas Market Leader and Senior Managing Director at WTW, where he leads the firm's efforts across North Texas, Oklahoma, and Northwest Arkansas and advises organizations on workforce strategy, employee wellbeing, financial resilience, total rewards, and business transformation. With over three decades of experience at WTW, John has built his career around strengthening organizations, cultivating inclusive teams, and helping people and institutions pursue long-term success. His commitment to putting people in a position to succeed closely aligns with the mission of the All Stars Project and its belief in the capacity of every young person to develop.

John and WTW have become valued members of the All Stars Project of Dallas community through a partnership spanning internships, workforce development programming through the Development School for Youth and Dallas Works, meaningful volunteerism, and community engagement. WTW has hosted All Stars Project interns, led and hosted professional development workshops and orientations with our Programs team, and participated in the South Dallas Martin Luther King Jr. Parade by marching alongside ASP, to name a few! Together with our Trustee Chair, Lillian Jersa, John has partnered with the All Stars Project to create a warm and welcoming environment in professional spaces for youth to practice stepping into the role of leaders and professionals.

Beyond WTW, John has contributed his mission-driven expertise to organizations and civic initiatives throughout North Texas, including the City of Allen's Community Engagement Advisory Board, Leadership Dallas, Big Brothers Big Sisters of Dallas, and Carson's Village. Across these roles and his involvement with the All Stars Project, John has demonstrated a sustained commitment to mentorship, inclusive leadership, and expanding opportunities for individuals and families. Honoring John and WTW reflects the spirit of the 2026 Fall Benefit theme, Building Bridges, Creating Our Legacy, recognizing a leader and corporate partner whose engagement has helped connect Dallas young people with professional relationships, meaningful experiences, and new possibilities for their futures.

JPMorgan Chase

JPMorgan Chase and the All Stars Project of Dallas share a growing partnership rooted in expanding economic opportunity, strengthening workforce readiness, and creating new pathways for young people across Dallas. Through philanthropic investment, employee engagement, and facilitating career ready opportunities, JPMorgan Chase supports ASP of Dallas connect young people from underserved communities to professional environments, caring adults, and meaningful work-based experiences. As one of the first and largest investors in Dallas Works youth, the company participates as an internship and workshop host, directly impacting our youth as they grow into leaders and professionals.

JPMorgan Chase's relationship with the All Stars Project also reflects a national connection to ASP's youth development and workforce initiatives. In Dallas, the firm's involvement aligns with ASP's "development through performance" approach by helping young people build confidence, communication skills, social capital, and vocational competence. As ASP of Dallas looks toward the next phase of Dallas Works, JPMorgan Chase is a key partner in leading career ready workshops in topics such as financial literacy and networking, hosting internships, and building a stronger, broader talent pipeline for the city.
